Enterprise Content Management

Creating Order Out of Chaos

Enterprise data is at the core of nearly all business decisions and operations and 80% of this data is unstructured. Imagine what your enterprise can achieve with better content and knowledge management.

Content grows exponentially, and every day everyone in your organization adds to the volume with documents, emails, IMs, web content and more. According to Gartner, enterprise data is expected to grow 650% in the next 3 to 5 years. This volume coupled with the variety and velocity of information enterprises amass add to content management complexity. Without proper management, these factors create overheads and operational inefficiency. When enterprises do not manage content effectively, they:

- Risk compliance failure and associated legal issues
- Promote inefficiency and lower productivity
- Overburden their IT department and Subject Matter Experts
- Negatively impact their bottom line

An effective ECM solution, on the other hand, will not only help improve operational efficiency and reduce the time, cost and complexity associated with storing, locating and collaborating on documents but will also help your business address quality and compliance requirements more effectively.

“Professionals spend 50% of their time searching for information, and take 18 minutes to locate each document on an average.”

-Gartner

AgreeYa's SharePoint ECM Service

Enterprise Content Management (ECM) incorporates both the processes and tools used to capture, create, manage, retain, share, search, view, route and expire company's critical electronic content and documents. SharePoint improves management of an organization's content lifecycle on a single platform, from creation to collaboration and expiration, and includes documents, emails and messages, conversations, web content, records, and rich media. It has proven ability to reduce costs, improve operational efficiencies and address crucial compliance requirements- while simultaneously providing a solid ROI. However, leveraging and implementing SharePoint ECM remains a key challenge for many enterprises.

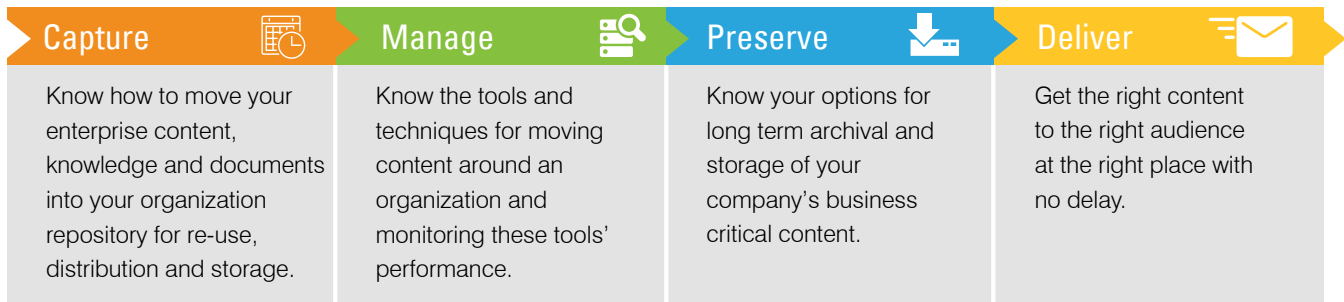

AgreeYa helps you fully reap the benefits of ECM including:

- Increased productivity and efficiency
- Content integrity and retrievability
- Improved collaboration
- Powerful search features and faster answers
- Better project management and coordination
- Mitigated risk & Enhanced compliance
- Better document onboarding

AgreeYa's SharePoint practice strives to make the entire process of ECM adoption- planning and implementation- as simple and transparent as possible. Here, we explore and review your needs and create a high-level plan for implementing or enhancing a SharePoint ECM solution. This while ensuring that you realize its true value and best meet your ECM goals. In addition, AgreeYa's exclusive SharePoint accelerators provides a foundation for an ECM that allows your organization to create and leverage enterprise collaboration and social networking for faster access to more accurate and relevant information. As a result, better decisions are made faster, boosting efficiency and profitability.

We know how to capture, manage and preserve your enterprise knowledge assets and make these available as and when you need them.
